

ESE Nurse Committee: Nomination Form

The European Society of Endocrinology Nurse Committee provides a support network and resources for Europe and internationally-based nurses working in Endocrinology. The Committee focuses on supporting nurses working in Endocrinology to advance their role and practice through education and training, establish a network of professional support and mentoring as well as offer a common ground to share expertise and learn from each other.

Our mission is to raise the profile of Endocrinology Nursing by supporting nurses in advancing their roles and practice. We also aim to provide a common ground to share expertise and create an interactive and dynamic platform for learning and supervision.

Nominations to become a member of the ESE Nurse Committee may be put forward by members or non-members of ESE. However, committee members must be a member of ESE. Members of the ESE Nurse Committee serve a term of three years. Full details are available at <https://www.ese-hormones.org/about-us/our-communities/nurses/>.

Nominations are invited from nurses who are currently working in Endocrinology and have at least 3 years' experience in the field. Nominees should also be actively involved in promoting the role of the Endocrine Nurse and have a track record of close working relationships with their national endocrine nurses' groups. Nominations will be reviewed by the ESE Nurse Committee and invitations to join will be made with a view to maintaining a balance within the Group in terms of gender, geographical spread and expertise.
