

Joint Humanitarian Statement by the European Society of Endocrinology and Partner Organisations

Revised October 2025

The European Society of Endocrinology (ESE), together with its partner organisations, is dedicated to advancing the field of endocrinology through scientific research, education and clinical practice. We share a commitment to promoting health and well-being for all people - regardless of nationality, ethnicity, gender, or political affiliation.

Organisations that are members of ESE, or seek to join as organisational members, are asked to co-sign this statement as a reflection of our shared values and mutual commitment.

By signing, your organisation affirms its alignment with these principles and joins ESE in fostering a global community firmly grounded in scientific excellence and humanitarian values. We trust that this joint statement reflects our collective dedication and strengthens our resolve to work together harmoniously and effectively.

Together, we uphold the following principles:

1. Commitment to Peace

We believe that peace is fundamental to human progress and strive to contribute to a world where conflict and violence are replaced by dialogue and mutual understanding.

2. Respect for International Law

We support the principles of international law, including human rights and humanitarian law and advocate for their universal respect and implementation.

3. Neutral Stance

We are united in our focus on the advancement of endocrinology and science. Our work and activities are aimed at neutrality and we do not support any particular political party, regime or movements.
